

The Dozing Judge

Once there was a judge who was overseeing a case.

The prosecution was speaking, and the defense was putting forth his argument.

He thought...

Let me read the papers first and then do the needful.

On the other hand, the prosecution and defense were having their own arguments and proofs to present their cases...

I object this your honor!

My Lord according to my case this is not like what it was presented.

In the middle of the case, the judge began to doze off.

Seeing the judge dozing, the courtroom deputy said...

Your honor,
you're dozing off,
you're not being attentive to the case.

The judge carelessly replied...

The decision is already been made.
So I do not need to pay any attention to their talks.

And he went back to sleep.

MORAL:

The judge had already made his decision. The defence and the prosecution could say whatever they wanted but as far as the decision was concerned, there would be no changes. Similarly, according to our karmas, even Yamraj has decided as to when we will die and when we will take birth. No one will be able to manipulate him.
