

Who is the Master?

One day, Gopal was going to a shop for some purchases. The shopkeeper was also coming back from some deliveries and saw a dog walking behind Gopal. Since he himself was also going back to his shop, he walked behind the dog.

As Gopal was entering the shop, the shopkeeper yelled...

Hey, Gopal
keep your dog out
of my shop!

But this
dog is not mine.

Of course it is yours. It was following you, so you are its master.

I see, then
my dog must be your master since you were
following it!

And if you
want to keep your master out, do it yourself.

MORAL:

One should not indulge in mental speculation and blind faith. If we keep judging people we will not have the time to love them.
