

Both devotees before getting married
staying with parents

When the newly married couple is staying with his parents and the parents are not interested in Krsna consciousness, and if the son is not able to stand up to his parents, then the wife really suffers...

...she finds her devotional service dwindling and her sadhana affected, and this brings resentment, frustration and depression. She feels her husband has cheated her in marriage. While the husband, not wanting to have problems at home, expects his wife to please his parents, who “have done so much for me”. The wife thus finds herself trapped.

A man in a white shirt and a red lanyard is looking at a woman in a yellow sari. The woman is standing in front of a window with a decorative hanging. A yellow speech bubble contains the text "How was the day today?".

How was the day today ?

A man in a white shirt and a woman in a yellow sari are in a room. The man is on the left, looking towards the woman. The woman is on the right, looking back at him. A yellow speech bubble is positioned between them. In the background, there is a window with a decorative hanging and a wooden structure.

Have you chanted your rounds ?

A photograph of a man and a woman in a room. The man, on the left, is wearing a white shirt and a purple lanyard. The woman, on the right, is wearing a yellow sari and is pointing towards the man. In the background, there is a wooden shrine with a deity. A yellow speech bubble is overlaid on the image, containing the text: "This is the first question you ask me everyday on returning from office. I feel like crying."

This is the first question you ask me
everyday on returning from office.
I feel like crying.

your mother keeps giving me work as soon as I sit for chanting my rounds. I finish my cooking the first thing in the morning, so that I can give you your breakfast prasad and also pack your lunch.

As soon as I sit for my chanting your mother gives me some other assignment.

Some how try to please them. Why don't you do your chanting in the afternoon.

A photograph of a man and a woman in a domestic setting. The man, on the left, is wearing a white long-sleeved shirt and dark trousers, with a white tilak on his forehead and a red lanyard around his neck. He is pointing his right index finger towards his temple. The woman, on the right, is wearing a yellow saree and is looking towards the man. In the background, there is a shrine with a deity and a window with a pink frame. A yellow speech bubble is overlaid on the image, containing text.

I have tried that.
They want to watch
the afternoon serials on the TV and keep inviting me to see them and are upset when I give an excuse.

*Why don't you finish all
your house work and chant
in the evenings?*

your mother goes for evening walks and gossips. She wants me to go with her.

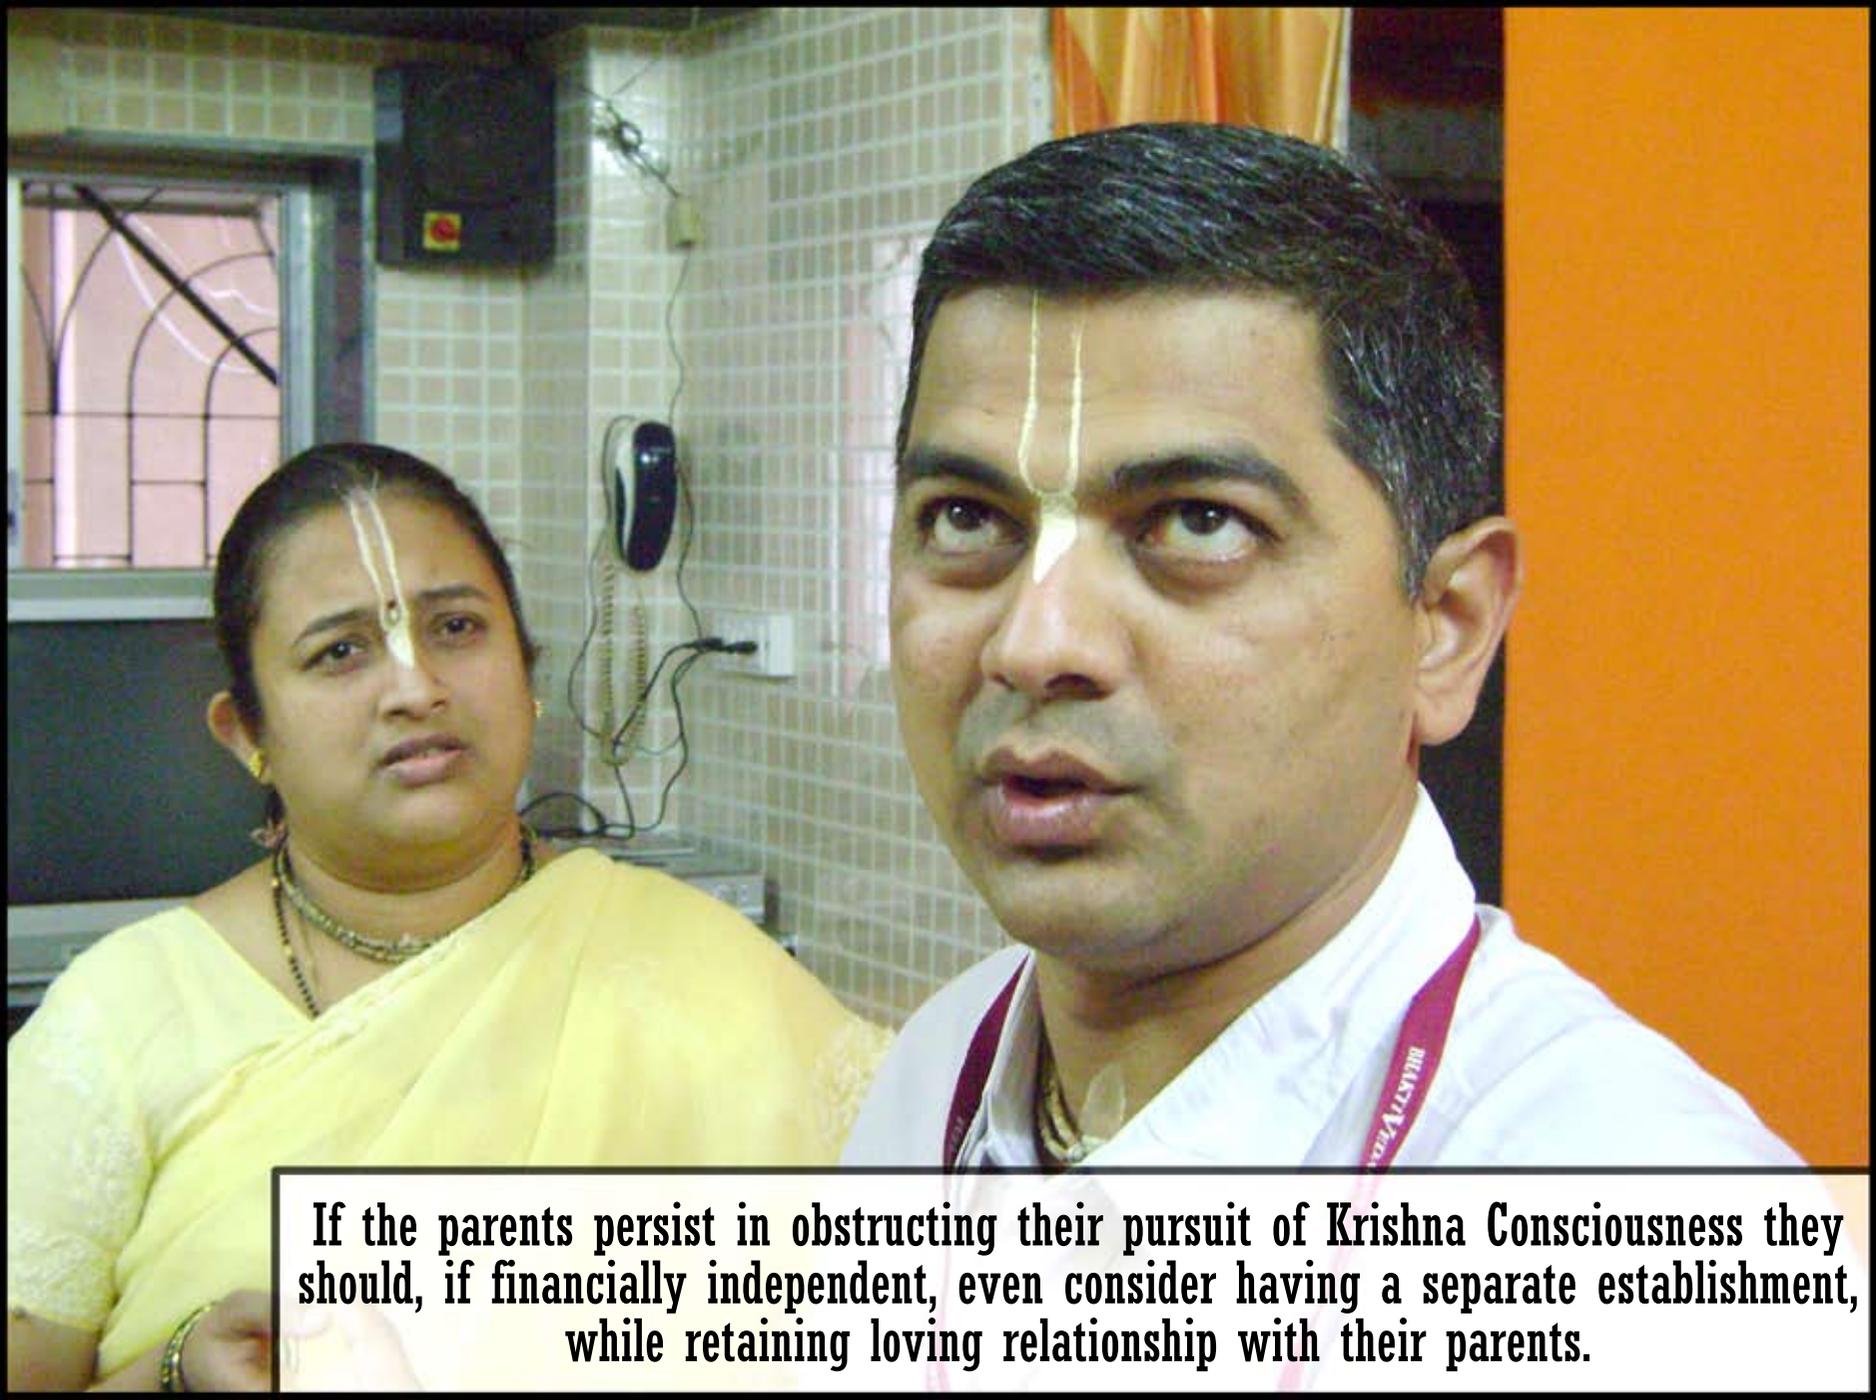

Why don't you speak up and tell your parents that you want to lead a Krishna Conscious life. Otherwise, I don't see any solution to my problem

I do not want to upset my parents. After all they took care of me all these years. educated me, I owe everything to them.

Satya has to perform his duty by his parents. But at the same time, if he and his wife are being obstructed in their Krishna Consciousness, Satya should speak to his parents boldly and explain nicely what the problem is.

If the parents persist in obstructing their pursuit of Krishna Consciousness they should, if financially independent, even consider having a separate establishment, while retaining loving relationship with their parents.
